Care to Care: a Summer Training for artists in Munich

The life of an artist is dominated by uncertainty, making it essential to create a more sustainable practice.

Integrating self-care and care within art practices and fostering a more inclusive art world is important as we learn to navigate its complexities. The Care to Care Summer Training wants to tackle all these issues and applications are now open.

Application Deadline: 14 August 2024

The Summer Training for Artists in Munich will take place in 11–13 September 2024 and presents an updated programme, providing artists with the professional knowledge, skills, and connections needed to navigate the art world with a special focus on the topic of Care and how to integrate sustainable strategies in artistic practice.

In this 3-day intensive training, with over 24 hours of workshops, face-to-face meetings and discussions, you will:

- Learn how to navigate the artworld(s).
- Reflect on how to develop a sustainable practice and integrate sustainable strategies in your artistic practice.
- Learn how to introduce Care in your practice and projects.
- Connect with gallerists, curators, professionals working in off spaces, and other artists.
- Learn how to select residency, exhibitions and grant applications, for emerging artists and artist-parents.
- Build a meaningful portfolio, a clear artist statement.
- Become part of a supportive, international network.

- Get individualised feedback & advice.
- Develop sustainable project proposals.

The Summer training is open to soon- to-be graduates, recent graduates, emerging artists and parent artists.
