ECSA | Open Call Film Music Business Career Mentoring Course

ECSA launched an open call for a course focused on film composers who seek knowledge on the entertainment industry.

After various successful previous editions, ECSA is partnering up again with OTICONS Film Composers Agency. Oticons Talent Agency operates globally by representing nearly 30 composers from all over the world and specialises in facilitating international co-productions. Oticons and ECSA present: the “Film Music Business Career Mentoring for European Film Composers”; a 2-day mentoring course performed by George Christopoulos (Founder & CEO of OTICONS) for one max. two lucky winners. The course will offer customised career advice and industry insights, to help its winner carve a realistic, efficient and successful career path as film composer.

In order to select the film composer(s) that are going to be awarded this opportunity, ECSA has decided to launch this open call. If you are a film composer who seeks knowledge on how things work in the entertainment industry, from networking and pitching to contracts and music publishing, you should definitely participate in the open call by filling in the form below.

You are required to provide your CV (in PDF format), some links to your website(s) and socials, and an online private playlist (preferably on SoundCloud, Disco, Dropbox or ReelCrafter) of max. four or your compositions that you consider your best. Approach it as a demo playlist that you would send to a European filmmaker to present yourself and your music.

The mentoring courses will take place in the second half of September.

This open call is reserved to all European composers.
