European Union Seeks Ukrainian Artists' Perspectives in New Survey

The Delegation of the European Union to Ukraine has launched an artist survey to gain insight into future cultural cooperation potentials between Ukraine and the EU

The brief 10-minute survey aims to uncover Ukrainian creatives' key challenges in their work and explore their openness to partnerships across Europe. All artists and cultural sector professionals in Ukraine are invited to have their voices heard.

The EU delegation explained the survey seeks to identify obstacles hindering Ukrainian talent while also charting opportunities for increased cross-border collaborations. Understanding artists' experiences and visions for cultural exchange will help inform the EU's strategies for supporting the local creative scene.

The anonymous online questionnaire explores access to funding, international networking abilities, and interest in residencies or joint exhibitions. By gleaning fresh perspectives from those at the forefront of culture, the delegation hopes to strengthen its advocacy and development initiatives.

The artist survey remains open through February 15th. All willing to share their creative insights are encouraged to participate using the provided link. Input gathered will be analyzed as the EU works with Ukrainian stakeholders to cultivate an environment where the arts can thrive.
