About the Programme

The NEMO One-to-One Mentoring programme, organised in partnership with GEM – the Group for Education in Museums, is designed for professionals seeking personalised guidance from experienced mentors. This initiative supports museum and heritage professionals in developing their careers, refining their skills, and expanding their networks through structured mentoring sessions.

What's Included?

- Three Online Mentoring Sessions: Goal-oriented discussions with an experienced mentor.
- International Networking: Connect with professionals across Europe's museum and heritage sectors.
- Personalised Support: Gain career-advancing insights, resources, and practical advice.

Eligibility

- Open to professionals working at NEMO member organisations (museums, museum networks, or national museum associations).
- If your organisation is not yet a member, you can apply for Trial Membership, gaining full access to NEMO's resources and benefits for one year.

For more details and to confirm your eligibility, contact office@ne-mo.org.

About GEM – Group for Education in Museums

GEM is a network of over 850 members dedicated to promoting learning across museums, heritage, and cultural institutions. Their mission is to create inspiring and inclusive learning experiences, transforming and enriching lives through museum education.
