RGCS Symposium 2025: Call for Papers

Join the RGCS Symposium 2025 in Milan by submitting your abstract to explore how the evolving nature of work reshapes spaces, time, and organizing practices in today's hybrid and dynamic environments.

Submission deadline: October 27, 2024

Organization: RGCS (Research Group on Collaborative Spaces)
Theme: "In-betweenness: Spatial and Temporal Perspectives on Working and Organizing"
Dates: January 23-24, 2025
Location: Politecnico di Milano, Milan, Italy

The RGCS (Research Group on Collaborative Spaces) Symposium 2025 invites submissions exploring the concept of "in-betweenness" in today's shifting work environments. As traditional boundaries of time, space, and roles blur due to remote work, platform technologies, and increased mobility, this symposium seeks to understand the hidden practices that emerge between physical spaces, digital tools, and social dynamics.

The Symposium aims to explore how hybrid workspaces, flexible schedules, and human-machine collaboration reshape organizational practices. Topics include dispersed work, hybrid environments, leadership in digital transitions, and social and spatial divides.

Submission Guidelines:

Organizers invite theoretical and empirical studies from diverse fields including organization studies, media, sociology, urban planning, and more. Both academics and practitioners are encouraged to submit.

Key Dates:

- Submission deadline for extended abstracts (1000 words):
October 27, 2024
- Notification of acceptance: November 15, 2024
- Registration for presenters and auditors: November 16 -
