The European Employment & Social Rights Forum 2023 has opened registrations

The Forum is a unique meeting point for opinion and decision makers to discuss current issues around European employment and social affairs.

Mark your calendar for the second European Employment & Social Rights Forum taking place in Brussels (the Egg).

Join EU institution representatives, national policymakers, Ministers, business leaders, social partners, civil society, and academia as they delve into the dynamic realm of artificial intelligence and its impact on the world of work.

Rapid technological transformation and new digital technologies bring forth a myriad of opportunities. They create new jobs for people, widen access to education, boost productivity, and improve our efficiency. Yet, these advancements also underscore growing inequality and a lack of transparency across the world. How do we ensure fairness, inclusivity and transparency as we navigate the new world of work?

EU and national policy-makers, Ministers, representatives from the EU institutions and businesses, social partners, civil society, and academics are invited to assess the current challenges and opportunities brought about by artificial intelligence to the world of work.

Be part of the dialogue on a safe and inclusive transition into AI at work at the European Employment & Social Rights Forum.

The 2023 Forum will revolve around four themes:

- The use of AI and algorithmic management in the workplace.
- AI and inclusivity in European labour markets and society.
- Digital skills and empowering workers in the context of the European Year of Skills.
- Emerging technology and work: a global outlook.

Event: 16 and 17 November 2023 Brussels, Belgium and online
